

“New modes of livelihood for Namibia’s urban future”: Workshop with James Ferguson (DRAFT)

22 July 2019

	MONDAY August 12	TUESDAY August 13	WEDNESDAY August 14	THURSDAY August 15	FRIDAY August 16
Morning	Guided visit through Windhoek’s informal markets, informal residential areas, and new government-supported residential and commercial projects.	Workshop Session 1 Introduction to key themes, previous events ¹ , and workshop’ programme.	Workshop Session 4 Session with input of guest from the public and private sector.	Workshop Session 6 Final presentations (open to invited guests)
		Workshop Session 2 ‘Current narratives’ and implications for urban development	Workshop Session 5 Session with input of civil society and informal sector.
Afternoon		Workshop Session 3 Interactive/projective session on implications of new modes of livelihoods for Namibia’s urban future.	Workshop (independent work): Participants prepare final presentations individually/in teams.	FREE
Evening				PUBLIC LECTURE ‘New modes of livelihoods for Namibia’s urban future’

¹ A series of seminars focused on livelihoods in Namibia will take place before and after the workshop.

PROGRAMME (DRAFT)

Session 1: Introduction to the programme, summary of points from previous seminars on contemporary livelihoods in Namibia, summary of key themes.

Session 2: Summary of 'current narratives' in development discourse in Namibia, with specific reference to socio-spatial development; responses from Prof Ferguson.

Session 3: Interactive session (ALL).

Part 1: Imagining new concepts and categories for development in Namibia.

Part 2: Imagining strategies and policies for Namibia's urban development based on the new concepts and categories.

Session 4: Session with input of guest from the public and private sector.

Session 5: Session with input of civil society and informal sector.

Independent work session: participants will work independently in sketching a vision for interventions based on the strategies and policies developed in Session 3.

Session 6: Final presentations with invited guests.